

I am currently making abstract paintings embedded with bits of found content. The embedded parts introduce elements-- photographs of sculpture, human or animal bodies, fragments of text-- foreign to the abstract arrangements. The inserted parts are physically inside the works, but stand apart from the painted compositions. As in a film, relationships emerge that conjoin unlike things across a cut.