I am currently making abstract paintings embedded with bits of found content. The embedded parts introduce elements— photographs of sculpture, human or animal bodies, fragments of text— foreign to the abstract arrangements. The inserted parts are physically inside the works, but stand apart from the painted compositions. As in a film, relationships emerge that conjoin unlike things across a cut.